

Participative and Communitarian approaches in Brazil – a Espirito Santo case study

Augusto Mozzine

*Political Sociology Graduate Program
Vila Velha University*

- Redes de Cidadania (Citizenship Networks):
 - University-Company cooperation for environmental compensation (IBAMA Program);
 - Subjects: artisanal fishermen and families;
 - Coverage area: central-north coast of Espírito Santo (18 fishermen communities);
 - Community development program which focus in: digital literacy, solidarity economy and environmental licensing process.

- Nature-Based Solutions in a Participatory and Communitarian Process:
 - How to balance communities aims and policy interventions on the environment?
 - How to equally distribute the benefits?
 - How to avoid gentrification?
 - How to finance NBS communitarian projects?

Thank You

augusto.mozine@uvv.br